James Sunderland receives a letter from his wife, Mary, that begs him to meet her in their 'special place' in Silent Hill, a resort town they visited together once on vacation.. James eventually discovers that his journey through Silent Hill has a very personal slant, as the town forces him to confront his fears, vices, and guilt via a number of increasingly-symbolic monsters, most notably (a muscular butcher in a pyramid-shaped helmet who rapes his fellow monsters and stalks James through the town).
